Chat Guidelines

Our meetings are public, and many visitors attend, including faculty, staff, students, administrators and occasionally, the media. Given these meetings are open to anyone's attendance, it means that the chat is also public and can be seen and read by anyone in attendance. We, as the Senate, cannot control how anyone responds to something said in the chat, nor what anyone does based on information read in the chat. However, it is our responsibility to make sure our meetings are run in a manner that is transparent and respectful to everyone who participates.

Please remember:

- To keep public chat conversations limited to what is being discussed on the Senate floor. Private chats are available and are not public.
- Members of the Executive Committee do monitor the chat.
- Please continue to post helpful links to documents or information related to the topic being discussed on the Senate floor, and to assist Senators in need of information.

Informational Items

When you are attending via Zoom, at the start of every Senate meeting, please change your name on Zoom to your name and apportionment unit (not college or work unit). For example, Senator McCalpine, Cascades. If you are a guest, please enter your name, then guest. For example, Erika McCalpine, Guest.

For those attending in person, Senators should check off their name on the roster outside the meeting room. Guests should print their name at the end of the roster.

When you have a question or comment, raise your Zoom hand. Once called upon, please state your name and apportionment unit before asking your question or making your comment. If attending in person, please go to one of the mics in the room, or a mic will be passed to you. You must speak into the mic for your comment to be recorded.

Bacc Core Reform Special Senate Forum

The Faculty Senate will host a special forum to discuss Baccalaureate Core Reform on May 20 at 3:00 PM. It will be held via a hybrid format. We have yet to determine the physical location.

Please alert faculty in your apportionment units so that we can have optimal attendance.

We will have an update on the progress of the Bacc Core Reform Committee today, and they will present their recommendations at the Senate meeting on May 12. We will have the special forum on May 20 and then vote on the recommended model at the Senate meeting in June.
