Required Courses (Designator, Number, and Title)	Program Level Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs) Addressed in the Course	Assignments in the Course that Could Possibly Measure the Program SLOs	Key Assessment(s) to Determine if Students have attained the SLO at the Level expected for Graduation

If the program relies on a lot of elective courses to develop student’s skills, knowledge, and values (SLOs) you can either create a second table with “Elective Courses” or take a different approach for assessing those SLOs. This will really depend on the extend of coverage of the SLOs in the required courses, the level of control your program has over the electives, and the opportunities to assess the student learning for those SLOs that fall outside of required courses via some other mechanism (such as portfolios).
