B. PROVOST'S QUARTERLY REPORT

Provost Ed Feser

- Provost Feser welcomed back faculty and thanked Mina and Dwaine for working with him this year.
- Public Safety Advisory Committee – The Oregon State Police (OSP) has decided to end their contract with OSU on July 1, 2019. A committee is being appointed to determine the long-term public safety needs.
- Searches –
 - Andrea Ballinger has been appointed as the Vice Provost for Information Technology.
 - College of Forestry Dean – Three finalists have been interviewed and currently negotiating with the top finalist.
 - College of Business Dean – Scott Ashford is chairing the search, which just launched.
 - College of Education Dean – Javier Nieto is chairing the search, which just launched. Toni Doolen's contract as interim dean ends July 1, 2020.
 - Vice Provost for Extension and Engagement – search will be launched soon. Administration took time to determine how to move forward with this position and, in particular, the position needs to be well-aligned with Extension. The title will also change to Vice Provost for Extension and Engagement.
 - Government Relations Director – President Ray is currently evaluating candidates.
- Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education Alix Gitelman is involved in developing Academic Program Plans for every college and OSU-Cascades. Provost Feser stated that this will not get in the way of shared governance related to curriculum. There is a need to do a better job of anticipating what academic proposals are coming online. Gitelman will work with deans and talk with Senators about a process involving looking ahead several years and identify expectations to develop or innovate new programs. This will allow OSU to better manage statewide relationships among public universities, and there is a need to better manage campus conversations, particularly programs across colleges. He stated this a planning exercise and will not change the usual approval process for governance.
- Academic unit review vs. program reviews – Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education Alix Gitelman and Graduate School Dean Phil Mote have been discussing the concept. Many universities use unit reviews, which simplifies the process, reduces burden and results in time and cost savings. Unit reviews provide more direct relationships between the review process and leadership and faculty in a particular unit. How to roll out this change is currently being evaluated.
- John Boeckstedt is the new Vice Provost for Enrollment Management and has been quite proactive in making positive improvements in approaching enrollment management. OSU changed out its financial aid consulting firm and is implementing a new CRM system (Slate) to manage all undergraduate admissions which is highly customizable and easy to implement.
 - Hired a new Sr. Associate Director of Transfer Admissions to handle transfer admissions, to process transfers more quickly, and added staff in articulations.

- This should substantially reduce time needed to process transfers students and reduce the criticism from Salem.
- The process for students to move between OSU-Cascades and Corvallis has been streamlined.
 - Susan Capalbo, JoAnne Bunnage and others' efforts resulted in a successful reaccreditation, and commended in five good areas – website design(!), facilities renewal program, robust culture of strategic planning, focus on student success and land grant mission.
 - Need to work on: measuring achievement in terms of outcomes rather than inputs; ensure that credit degrees have consistency and quality across different locations; and recommendations related to student learning outcomes assessment.
 - SP4.0 – Susan Capalbo is leading an implementation effort which includes 20 actions in the plan, with 4-6 prospective tactics. For each area, action leaders have been identified for the 20 actions, with about 10 actions underway. Many items in the plan intersect with what the Faculty Senate is doing, such as revising the Baccalaureate Core. We have four years to achieve the action items.
 - Retooling on Portland – Traditional undergraduate programs are not working; will emphasize a greater degree the hybrid offerings for adult learners; and there are opportunities to be better hosts for those wanting to use the space. Dan Larson is heading up the Portland Center.
 - UAOSU – Negotiations are underway. From an administrative standpoint, progress is being made. He noted that it takes time to negotiate the first contract.
 - Campus Salary Program – The program will continue as in the past, and will be the same offer as last year. UAOSU elected to not accept the offer. In response to inquiries, the plan was communicated in an open setting – he felt it's good to be transparent of what is being offered.

E. REPORT FROM AND DIALOG WITH THE FACULTY SENATE PRESIDENT

Mina Carson

- Projects that the Faculty Senate and Executive Committee have been working on include:
 - Faculty Consultative Group (FCG) – During the May Faculty Senate meeting there was a request from several Senators to activate the FCG to determine whether there was a unit reorganization, reduction or elimination, and to ensure that the process was appropriately following. It appears that the potential 4-H/Extension reorganization is a moving target. Need to talk about faculty needs and policies. This is a complicated situation.
 - Baccalaureate Core Listening Sessions – The sessions have begun and two more are scheduled. They are building a curated library about general education around the country. She encouraged faculty to send bacc core or general ed information to her or Vickie Nunnemaker to add to the library.
 - Shared Governance Task Force – The group has been working and hopes to forward a revised document before the December meeting.
 - eSET – The process is going well.
- She thanked Caitlin Calascibetta, Vickie Nunnemaker and the technical staff assisting with the meeting.
