~~A hybrid course includes both regularly scheduled on-site classroom meetings, and significant online out-of-classroom components, that replace regularly scheduled class meeting time.~~

A hybrid course integrates regularly scheduled on-site classroom meetings with significant online, out-of-classroom components that replace regularly scheduled class meeting time. Students are required to participate in both the online and classroom portions of the course. A substantial portion of the course learning activities are delivered online with face-to-face meeting time generally reduced by 30 to 70% compared to a traditional on-campus course.

For example, hybrid delivery of a 3-credit course that normally meets for two 80-minute periods each week might involve meeting on campus for one 80-minute period weekly, blended with online learning activities requiring student engagement equivalent to a second classroom meeting. Online portions of the hybrid course are delivered through Canvas. The syllabus and online components of the hybrid course meet hybrid program course quality standards.

Hybrid courses offered on the Corvallis and any of the OSU-Cascades campuses during daytime hours on weekdays are considered on-campus courses rather than Ecampus courses. Tuition for these hybrid courses is the same as for other on-campus courses. Ecampus offers hybrid courses that meet at off-campus sites or during evenings or weekends.

Hybrid courses are listed in Banner SIS as a Schedule Type (HYB).
